East Boston track unveils casino plans

- Racetrack and casino officials cheered on by supporters yesterday
- Opponents say project would negatively impact neighborhood, city

▶ An artist's rendering of the proposed lobby.

▶ Architect David Manfredi discusses the casino proposal yesterday.

Suffolk Downs revealed plans yesterday for a $1 billion Caesars-branded casino resort at its historic racetrack in East Boston.

Project leaders unveiled architectural renderings of the proposed development, which they have dubbed a "world class resort and casino" that would include a hotel, restaurants, a casino gaming complex, retail shops, a nightclub, a luxury spa, and of course, horse racing.

"This facility will add to the appeal of visitation in Boston," said Gary Loveman, chairman, CEO and president of Caesars Entertainment, and Suffolk Downs gaming management partner for the development. "We'll bring the 45 million American adults that are already customers of ours around the country and around the world to Boston."

The 200,000-square-foot gaming complex would include up to 5,000 slot machines, 200 table games and a World Series of Poker room.

The 163-acre track, which has been running live horses racing for 77 years, is about 10 minutes from downtown Boston and about three miles from Logan Airport.

If voters in East Boston and Revere approve the project, the resort will generate 2,500 construction jobs and more than 4,000 resort jobs for Boston-area residents, according to proponents.

"This facility will add to the appeal of visitation in Boston."

GARY LOVEMAN, CHAIRMAN, CEO AND PRESIDENT OF CEASARS ENTERTAINMENT, AND SUFFOLK DOWNS GAMING MANAGEMENT PARTNER FOR THE DEVELOPMENT.

"Remember that when you bring an excess of 10 or 15 thousand people to an area every single day over a long period of time the effects on local business can be really dramatic," Loveman said.

When asked what impact the project would have on local traffic, specifically Route. 1A which one member of the media called "a traffic nightmare," Chip Tuttle, Suffolk Downs CEO, said part of the $1 billion investment would include $40 million for local road and infrastructure improvements.

Tuttle said specific details on those improvements will be released soon.

While there were several rounds of applause at yesterday's unveiling, not all residents are on board with the plan.

No Eastie Casino, a grassroots group of neighbors, released a statement yesterday saying it feared the resort would "drastically and negatively change the face of the neighborhood and city" by driving up traffic and crime, detracting from local businesses, and lowering home values.

"Over the last several years, East Boston's low crime rate, affordable housing, and proximity to Boston and the North Shore have made it one of the fastest-growing neighborhoods in the city," said Celeste Meyers, a spokeswoman for No Eastie Casino. "A casino is simply not in the vision many residents have for their neighborhood or Boston as a whole."

The details

The resort would include:
- A hotel with about 300 rooms
- 200,000 square feet of gaming space
- 4,000-5,000 slot machines
- 200 table games
- World Series of Poker room

Let's talk food
- About 10 restaurants would include fine dining, a buffet, a food court and a sports bar

Workin' hard for the money
- Officials predict the resort will generate $200 million in new tax revenue each year
- About 2,500 construction jobs and 4,000 resort new jobs are expected
- Developers say they will spend $150 million annually for goods and services among local and regional businesses

Did you know?

- In 1937, champion thoroughbred racehorse Seabiscuit, with jockey Johnny "Red" Pollard, won the third running of the MassCap at Suffolk Downs.
- On Aug. 18, 1966, the Beatles played a concert for about 24,000 fans in the infield of Suffolk Downs.

'I DON'T REALLY KNOW WHERE THIS YEAR IS GOING TO TAKE ME'

Boston University student Olivia Culpo was named the new Miss USA earlier this week after besting 50 other beauty queens in the Las Vegas pageant. The 20-year-old took some time yesterday to talk with Metro about her widely discussed pageant answer and time in Boston.

You just finished your sophomore year at BU and now you're Miss USA. What does that mean for your future with school? I am still enrolled in school, so right now I just plan on taking a year off, but I don't really know where this year is going to take me. I definitely want to finish my college degree, but I'm not sure where yet. I'm thinking I'll come back to Boston though.

Your response of support to the question about including transgender people in the competition is getting a lot of attention on its own. Are you surprised or did you think it would be that big of a deal? Well I did know that it was a controversial topic so, yeah, I had an idea. I was just in such shock after I had won that it didn't exactly register, but as soon as I won everybody kept asking me about my question and saying they were so nervous for me when I was asked such a controversial question. But it wasn't really too difficult for me to answer. I kind of just stuck to what I believe and that was pretty easy for me. I just kind of spoke from my heart I guess.

BU has had a tough year ... including the hazing incidents and hockey players accused of rape and some tragedy with students killed while abroad and another fatally shot. What do you think your win does for BU after all of that? I hope that it would uplift the spirits because we have had a tough year. Those sort of tragedies are just awful and of course nobody can control them, but that's kind of how just life happens. It was just really, really awful tragedies that can happen in [parts of] life.

▶ Is this cyclist safe in the bike lane?

Shortly after Beacon Hill lawmakers essentially killed a bill meant to help protect bicyclists, pedestrians and other vulnerable road users, a bike rider was killed and another seriously injured in separate incidents.

Rather than vote on vulnerable road users bill, the Joint Committee on Transportation sent the bill to study, which almost always means a bill is done progressing for the legislative session.

"We're definitely dismayed the Legislature didn't deem it important enough to even debate," said Pete Stidman, executive director of the Boston Cyclists Union. "We're not talking about a huge change. It's something I think that we deemed passable, but we're going to have to do some homework to find out why the legislators were hesitant to bring it to the floor."

A staffer for the committee's members said he could not comment by press time.

The committee voted to send it to study just before its deadline reporting date of last Friday — the same day a 28-year-old Boston College graduate student was killed as she rode her bicycle along Huntington Avenue. Police are investigating whether woman was hit or fell into traffic.

"Patience and persistence are pretty much required if you're going to engage in legislative process."
DAVID WATSON, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF MASSBIKE

That same day a doctor from Norwood Hospital was seriously injured when he was hit by a car as he rode his bicycle in Norwood. The driver fled, but later surrendered to police.

Last week, plans to expand the bicycle-sharing program Hubway from 61 to 100 stations were announced. Hubway also logged more than 250,000 rides this year — its second in operation.

The addition of more bikes and amateur cyclists creates a need for more awareness and education for both drivers and riders, advocates said.

Groups that backed the bill said they plan to continue their work to get something similar passed in the future.

Lawyer: City settles lawsuit with man who recorded BPD officers

Lawyers for a Dorchester man who was arrested for recording Boston police officers with his cell phone camera said the city has agreed to pay $33,000 to settle the civil rights lawsuit the man filed last year.

Boston police said they did not receive any official notification yet, but said at the time the lawsuit was filed last year that officers had since received training and that public and open recording of officers is allowed under state statute.

Maury Paulino was 19 when he was arrested in November 2009 for resisting arrest, assault and battery on a police officer and disorderly conduct. He was acquitted last year.

Paulino was outside the Roxbury police station after bailing out a friend who exchanged words with the officers. The lawsuit alleged that the officers then used excessive force when arresting Paulino for recording the incident. He alleged the officers punched and kneed him and used pepper spray.

"I hope this settlement teaches the police not to arrest people for recording them," Paulino said in a statement.

MICHAEL NAUGHTON
michael.naughton@metro.us

Other case set standard

Paulino's lawyer, David Milton, also represented Simon Glik.

- Glik sued the city for arresting him for recording an arrest on the Boston Common in 2007.
- That case went to the First Circuit Court of Appeals, which ruled that recording police openly in public was legal.
- The city settled that lawsuit for $170,000.

T preps for more cuts

BOSTON. The MBTA is preparing for service cuts in case the state does not come through with a $51 million bailout by July 1.

MBTA staff is making a list of bus routes which may be axed to close its budget gap, according to MBTA spokesman Joe Pesaturo.

"The MBTA has been very clear that without additional revenue, service cuts will be the only means available for balancing the Fiscal Year '13 budget, as required by state law," Pesaturo said.

If the bailout comes through, it would be a quick fix.

The MBTA will face another budget deficit next year, Pesaturo said, unless officials can come up with a long-term solution to the T's money troubles.

Fares will increase by 23 percent starting in July.

Al Qaeda No. 2 killed in drone missile strike

MASSOUD HOSSAINI/AFP/GETTY IMAGES

▶ A missile launched from a drone struck a suspected militant hideout and killed Mohamed Hassan Qaid.

In what U.S. officials described as major blow to al Qaeda, the group's second-ranking leader, a militant known as Abu Yahya al-Libi, was killed in a strike by a missile fired from a U.S.-operated drone, an official confirmed yesterday.

The official said the Libyan-born Libi, a cleric whose real name was Mohamed Hassan Qaid, was killed in a drone strike early morning Monday, Pakistan time. The drone-launched missile was targeted at a suspected militant hideout in Hesokhel, a village in North Waziristan, a tribal region in Pakistan along its border with Afghanistan.

U.S. officials said that Libi, who had appeared in al Qaeda propaganda videos and once escaped from an a U.S.-operated prison in Afghanistan, was a key figure in what remained of the core al Qaeda network founded by Osama bin Laden, who was killed last year in a U.S. commando raid on his hideout near a Pakistani military academy.

The officials spoke on condition of anonymity to discuss intelligence matters.

In the wake of bin Laden's death, officials said, Ayman al Zawahri, an Egyptian doctor who had been bin Laden's longtime deputy, became the leader of al Qaeda's core group, advised and assisted by a small coterie of veteran militants. U.S. officials said Libi had recently emerged as Zawahri's principal deputy. REUTERS

Social not-working?

Survey shows few Facebook users actually click the site's ads In light of disastrous IPO, new data shed light on flaws of Internet business model

Four out of five Facebook users have never bought a product or service as a result of advertising or comments on the social network site, a Reuters/Ipsos poll shows, the latest sign that much more needs to be done to turn its 900 million customer base into advertising dollars.

The online poll also found that 34 percent of Facebook users surveyed were spending less time on the website than six months ago, whereas only 20 percent were spending more.

The findings underscore investors' worries about Facebook's moneymaking abilities that have pushed the stock down 29 percent since its initial public offering last month, reducing its market value by $30 billion to roughly $74 billion.

Facebook competes for online ads with Google, the world's No. 1 Web search engine, which generated roughly $38 billion in revenue last year. Google's search ads, which appear alongside the company's search results, are considered among the most effective means of marketing.

$3.7B While Facebook generated $3.7 billion in revenue last year, mostly from ads on its website, sales growth is slowing.

REUTERS

About 44 percent of respondents said the market debut, seen by investors as troubled, has made them less favorable toward Facebook, according to the survey.

Facebook's 900 million users make it among the most popular online destinations, challenging entrenched Internet players such as Google and Yahoo. Not everyone is convinced the company has figured out how to translate that popularity into a business that can justify its lofty valuation.

Shares of Facebook closed Monday's regular trading session down 3 percent at $26.90.

While the survey did not ask how other forms of advertising affected purchasing behavior, a February study by research firm eMarketer suggested Facebook fared worse than e-mail or direct-mail marketing in terms of influencing consumers' decisions.

"It shows that Facebook has work to do in terms of making its advertising more effective and more relevant to people," eMarketer analyst Debra Williamson said.

Those concerns were exacerbated last month when General Motors Co., the third-largest advertiser in the United States, said it would stop paid advertising on Facebook.

Facebook declined to comment in detail on the survey, but referred to case studies of companies such as Nutella, which found that a 15 percent increase in sales was attributable to Facebook, and restaurant chain Applebee's, whose Facebook ads delivered a threefold return on investment. REUTERS

Tweeting under the influence, for real

▶ Next up on Gwen's healthy-living blog: Agave nectar cocktails with The-Dream?

Gwyneth Paltrow has spent the past couple days dealing with the fallout over her now infamous tweet from a Jay-Z and Kanye West concert in France.

(Your day doesn't include petty Twitter arguments? Fascinating. We'll catch you up: She tweeted a photo of herself dancing onstage with the rappers and a caption that read "Nas in paris for real.")

Most people weren't buying Paltrow's initial argument that the caption was a harmless play on a song title from the Jay-Z/West album "Watch the Throne" and not an N-word violation — probably because she runs a "lifestyle" blog and starred in "Shakespeare in Love."

But now The-Dream has jumped in to defend the actress, claiming that he took the photo from her phone and also sent the offending Tweet.

"Fyi Sorry for the Confu I typed Nias in paris for real from Gwens Phone my bad I was Fkd up please excuse it! We were lit!" the rapper posted.

Now, we're going to let Twitter and The-Dream sort out who is allowed to say what words and when — real issues aren't exactly this page's department. Plus, we think there's a bigger question here: Where does drinking backstage at a Jay-Z concert fit into Mrs. Coldplay's aggressively calculated Whitest Girl in Yoga Pants résumé? Jay, you might want to get one of your people on this.

Inside, Stewart laments losing her privacy after "Twilight." "You can Google my name and one of the first things that comes up is images of me sitting on my front porch smoking a pipe. It was taken the day the movie came out. I was no one. I was a kid. I had just turned 18," she says. "The next day it was like I was a delinquent slimy idiot. Big deal. But that changed my daily life instantly. I didn't go out in my underwear anymore."

Talking points

Baby makes three at Barrymore wedding

During his wedding to Drew Barrymore, Will Kopelman took a moment to acknowledge that their family is about to expand, according to Us Weekly. "Will said something like, 'I'm excited to marry you. I'm excited to meet the newest member of our family,'" a source tells the magazine.

▶ Willis

Scout Willis busted for drinking

Bruce Willis and Demi Moore's 20-year-old daughter was arrested for drinking a beer in public in New York City on Monday night — and showing a fake ID to cops probably didn't help, either. Scout Willis was booked for criminal impersonation and having an open container before being released without bail.

Clarkson: 'Idol' a 'horrible' experience

Kelly Clarkson will play a mentoring role on the upcoming singing competition "Duets," and she hopes that she's learned from the mistakes that "American Idol" made when she was a contestant. "I'm going to be completely honest — I had no one looking out for me. They were looking out for the show, and it was horrible," she says. "I was 19 years old. I was smart enough to know that it wasn't about me, but that didn't make it any easier. I'm all cried out about it, but my first four years, I hated my life; I almost quit a dozen times."

Alexander apologizes for cricket comments

Former "Seinfeld" star Jason Alexander is offering an apology for his comments about cricket, which he called "a gay game" during an interview with Craig Ferguson. "The worst part is, I should know better," he says. "My daily life is filled with gay men and women, both socially and professionally. I am profoundly aware of the challenges these friends of mine face and I have openly advocated on their behalf."

Family affairs and wax figure scares

1 Here's hoping the Young Hollywood studio is equipped with a ball pit and snack stash: Andy Samberg and Adam Sandler stopped by to promote their new film, "That's My Boy."

2 Betty White (on the left, we think) attended the unveiling of her wax figure at Madame Tussauds Hollywood on Tuesday. And yeah — we thought she was cloning a scary grandma army for a second, too.

3 Snuggle alert: Jay-Z and Blue Ivy were out and about in Paris on Tuesday.

4 In other hot dad news, David Beckham took the kids to the LA Kings Game on Tuesday night.

5 Kate Middleton gets our vote for best hat at yesterday's Diamond Jubilee Reception in London.

6 Tres cute: Dakota Fanning stopped by the CFDA Fashion Awards on Tuesday Night in NYC.

To get the variable "go to" APR shown, you must obtain a credit line of $100,000-$750,000. The introductory APR will apply only during the first 12 billing cycles after your FlexLock line is opened. Thereafter, the APR, including the APR on any existing balance, will convert to the applicable variable "go to" APR. The "go to" APR on FlexLock lines may vary monthly based on the latest U.S. Prime Rate as published in The Wall Street Journal as of the first business day of the month, plus a margin of .74% (now 3.99% APR). Maximum APR is 18%. Minimum APR is 3.24%. After the introductory APR expires, the interest rate will increase by 0.25% if automatic payment is discontinued. FlexLock lines with lower credit limits are available. Contact us for information about applicable rates and other terms. All APRs assume that your total mortgage loans, including your FlexLock line, do not exceed 80% of the value of your 1-4 family owner-occupied residential property in MA, RI, CT, NH, NJ, PA, DE, ME, VT or DC. There is a $450 termination fee if you close the line within 36 months. An annual fee, if any, will be charged during the Draw Period. The amount of any annual fee will vary based on the type of deposit account relationship you have with Sovereign at the time the fee is assessed. The annual fee will be waived as long as you maintain a Sovereign Premier deposit account relationship. The annual fee will be $25 as long as you maintain a Sovereign Preferred deposit account relationship. Otherwise, the annual fee will be $50. There is a $50 fixed rate lock fee for each lock-in request. Property insurance is, and flood insurance may be, required. FlexLock account use is subject to the terms of the Sovereign Home Equity Line of Credit Agreement, including terms that permit lines to be suspended, reduced or terminated in certain circumstances. Maximum line amount is $750,000. If your home is on the market for sale at the time of application, you are not eligible for this offer. If your property is held in trust, this offer is not applicable, as a non-refundable fee of $175 will be charged for consideration of trust properties. Offer not available if you have received an introductory rate on a FlexLock line within 12 months of your application date. APRs and other terms accurate as of 6/1/12 and may change thereafter. Applications subject to approval. Check with your tax advisor. SOVN1440REG 6/12

Elijah Wood on his TV 'Uprising'

Elijah Wood is jumping feet-first into the world of animated series television with "Tron: Uprising," a new show that takes place in the time between 1982's "Tron" and 2010's "Tron: Legacy." Of course, it's not necessarily new territory for the actor, who's popped up as a voice in films, TV and video games in the past. "Over the last number of years, I'm no stranger to voice work in animation, so I'm used to it," Wood says. "But getting a chance to work within the context of a universe I was already familiar with was really fun. It just gave the whole experience a more special quality, I think."

The familiar universe of "Tron: Uprising" also meant more than just the usual voice-over work, though: "The character happens to be extremely physical, so there's a lot of me standing in front of a microphone, punching and kicking the air, and making myself sound like I'm in all sorts of intense physical scenarios, which is pretty hilarious," Wood says. "I'm sure there's some footage of me standing there looking like an idiot."

"I'm always intrigued by new challenges and things that I've never done before, and new experiences."

▶ Elijah Wood lends his voice to the animated series "Tron: Uprising," premiering tomorrow at 9 p.m. on Disney XD.

Finding the right voice for his character was easy, as it turns out, since the show's producers really just wanted Wood. "It was determined right away that it would be my own voice," he says, though he cautions that with secret identities and hush-hush rebellions on the menu, it's never that simple. "When the character is Tron, or The Renegade, we do change his voice a little bit," Wood explains. "Digitally, they mess with his voice, and I also give it a gravity that Beck doesn't have in his normal Beck mode. The character is split between the two, in a way. Some of those more Tron-Renegade moments definitely have a depth and a gravity to them, and that's fun. It's fun to play around with all of that."

While "Tron: Uprising" and his live-action TV series, "Wilfred," have kept him busy — not to mention several film projects — Wood is keeping an open mind when it comes to what's next. "I don't know that I'm ever looking for anything, in particular," Wood admits. "I'm always intrigued by new challenges and things that I've never done before, and new experiences. It sounds so simple, but the primary interest is just something that's good and instills within me some kind of gut feeling that I'm passionate and excited about — and there can be multiple variables that can instill that. But, I'm always just looking to do things that I've never done before, primarily."

Speaking of franchises

Though he seems to be spending most of his time on TV these days, Elijah Wood has a fairly notable big-screen appearance coming up, reprising his role as Frodo Baggins for a cameo in "The Hobbit." Returning to New Zealand — and the character that's come to define his career — was a thrill, Wood says. "It's not often that you have such an intense formative life experience, and then, 10 year later, get to revisit that," he says. "We shot a little bit in Hobbiton, and I realized that I had turned 19 in Hobbiton. I was there 11 years ago. That's bonkers! And it hasn't changed." Well, mostly it hasn't changed: "It just got bigger," he admits. "It's only two movies this time, but there's more trailers than we had last time. It feels bigger, but it's the same atmosphere."

Awesome as becoming Frodo again might have been, Wood does admit that one particular moment didn't quite live up to his expectations. "Putting on the feet was very surreal. It was a mix of being incredibly surreal and yet totally normal, because I'd done that for four years. ... I actually expected it to be more surreal than it was, but in a way it also just felt like no time had passed and suddenly there I was."

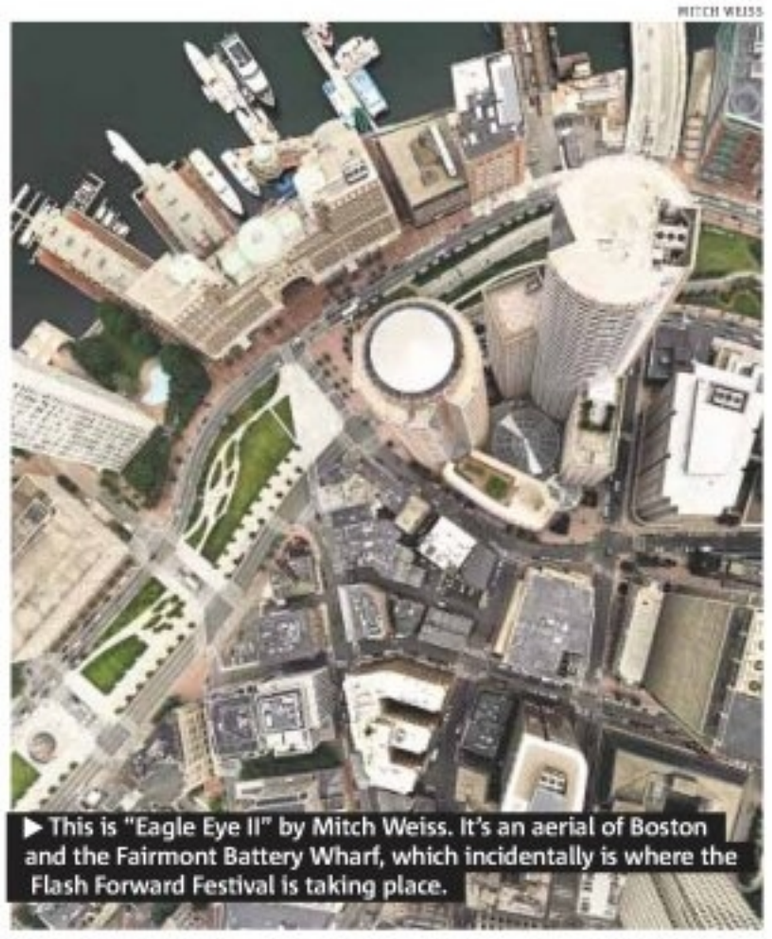
Flash Forward to the next generation

Photography festival brings together seasoned professionals and emerging talents Founder MaryAnn Camilleri talks about recruiting Hub artists

MITCH WEISS



▶ This is "Eagle Eye II" by Mitch Weiss. It's an aerial of Boston and the Fairmont Battery Wharf, which incidentally is where the Flash Forward Festival is taking place.

MaryAnn Camilleri wants to flash forward to a time when photographers of all ages work together. In fact, that's why she founded the Flash Forward Festival.

"Because of the ever changing industry at this point in time, I'm trying to teach Boston how to work together and create something," says Camilleri. "It is really about being inclusive."

Camilleri is the Flash Forward Festival director and founder of the nonprofit Magenta Foundation. The festival was born out of a desire to network and educate aspiring photographers. Since its beginnings as a competition, which introduced emerging photographers from Canada, the U.K. and the U.S., Toronto-based Camilleri and the Magenta Foundation have developed their understanding of and appreciation for the Boston arts community.

"I started to get to know the community and asked everyone who I should talk to. I campaigned," she says. "It was like being the mayor."

The campaigning has paid off with great dividends. The second iteration of the five-day festival combines industry panels on how to publish, publicize and monetize photography in print, magazine and digital formats with a variety of different exhibitions.

Camilleri says a committee of six people internationally came up with what they would like to show people.

"The programming is exciting, taking people from different fields," she says. "When we talk about the [photography] industry, people forget that the art directors are really critical — it's important to introduce the [art directors] from Vanity Fair and Enroute Magazine in Canada."

Facebook will disappear by 2020, says analyst

When it comes to online companies, you can't stay on top forever Just as Yahoo! had its heyday in 2000, so will Facebook become a fading star

Facebook's sliding stock price has one hedge fund manager predicting a dismal decade ahead for the social network.

"In five to eight years, they are going to disappear in the way that Yahoo has disappeared," Ironfire Capital founder Eric Jackson told the CNBC show Squawk on the Street on Monday.

"Yahoo is still making money, it's still profitable, still has 13,000 employees working for it, but it's 10 percent of the value that it was at the height of 2000," Jackson added. "For all intents and purposes, it's disappeared."

So how exactly does Jackson see Facebook's power eroding by decade's end? He says it will be the continued emergence of the mobile Web — and Facebook's struggle to adapt to that paradigm shift.

"I think those who are dominant in their prior generation are really going to have a hard time moving into this newer generation," he said.

"Facebook can buy a bunch of mobile companies, but they are still a big, fat website, and that's different from a mobile app."

Facebook bought the popular mobile photo-sharing app Instagram for $1 billion in April. Still, the company has acknowledged mobile as a potential stumbling block for sustained growth.

In its required initial pre-IPO disclosure of 35 "risk factors" released February, the company admitted that as mobile use of Facebook continues to expand, its ad-free mobile platform will become more problematic.

▶ So long, my kingdom?

Think you can't save a life? Think again

Hands-only CPR can drastically increase the chance of survival for someone in cardiac arrest Why it works The song that can help you keep the beat

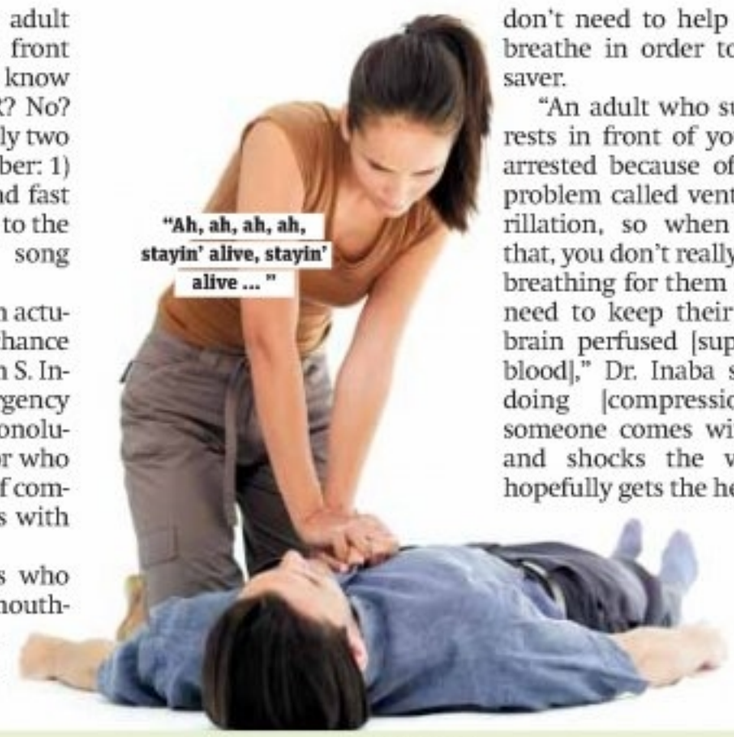
Dr. Inaba discovered the matching beats after an American Heart Association meeting in 2005.

AMERICAN HEART ASSOCIATION

If you saw a teen or adult suddenly collapse in front of you, would you know how to perform CPR? No? That's OK — there are only two steps you need to remember: 1) Call 911; 2) Push hard and fast in the center of the chest to the beat of the Bee Gees' song "Stayin' Alive."

"By doing that, you can actually double or triple the chance of survival," says Dr. Alson S. Inaba, a pediatric emergency medicine physician in Honolulu, Hawaii, and the doctor who discovered that the rate of compressions correctly aligns with the beat of the disco hit.

For potential rescuers who may be nervous about mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, that's good news — you don't need to help the victim breathe in order to be a lifesaver.



"Ah, ah, ah, ah, stayin' alive, stayin' alive ... "

"An adult who suddenly arrests in front of you probably arrested because of a rhythm problem called ventricular fibrillation, so when you have that, you don't really need to be breathing for them — you just need to keep their heart and brain perfused [supplied with blood]," Dr. Inaba says. "Keep doing [compressions] until someone comes with an AED and shocks the victim and hopefully gets the heart back to a regular rhythm."

If you do know conventional CPR, Dr. Inaba adds, it's preferable to perform that instead of the hands-only method. "But if you had a choice of [doing] nothing or [doing compressions] until the paramedics arrive, go ahead and push on the chest until help arrives."

"With all the high-tech technology that [we] have to help these people," Dr. Inaba adds, "really what's gonna make a difference is the lay rescuer, the person who sees someone drop in front of them, the rescuer who has enough courage, compassion and caring in their heart to say 'I can do this.'"

POM Wonderful's health benefits

Location of study: U.S.
Results: Chief Administrative Law Judge D. Michael Chappell has ratified the Federal Trade Commission's complaint that POM Wonderful LLC, the makers of POM 100% Pomegranate Juice and POMx supplements, falsely advertised that their products could work wonders for heart disease, prostate cancer and erectile dysfunction.
Significance: In a 335-page decision, the judge ruled that POM did not have enough evidence to claim the aforementioned benefits by drinking 8 ounces of POM daily or taking a POMx pill or one teaspoon of POMx liquid.

POM has fired back with a new ad campaign.

Renaming high-fructose corn syrup

Location of study: U.S.
Results: The FDA rejected the Corn Refiners Association petition to change high-fructose corn syrup to "corn sugar" on nutritional labels.
Significance: High-fructose corn syrup is chemically-treated cornstarch and has come under fire for being a non-natural sweetener. A 2007 Consumer Reports National Survey conducted found that 83 percent of consumers did not believe that ingredients like high-fructose corn syrup should be used in products labeled as "natural."

Greedy corporations are anti-American

RE: "WE MUST PAY RICH OR THEY'LL LEAVE US!": Corporations who send American jobs abroad for love of money over country are traitors! They can go bankrupt, for all I care. Once global wages inflate closer to ours (and they're rapidly doing so!), those same companies will be begging to come back. Screw 'em! Sleep in the bed you made yourselves. Since when did profit mean more than country?! This is why Republicans are trying to destroy unions. The living wage unions represent should be the norm, not the $4/hour slave wages of China and India. Who could live on that? For this treason, the GOP should go extinct. They're evil puppets working hard for billionaires looking to further line their pockets at the expense of the American worker. Is there class warfare today? You bet! But hard-working folks didn't start it, corporate raiders did. The question now becomes: Will my neighbor stand with me, trying to make a better life for my family? Or will he stand with greedy, profiteering billionaires hell-bent on destroying the way of life for an entire generation in the name of vulture capitalism? I know where Joey Whitmoyer stands. What about you?
JD DUCAS, VIA E-MAIL

Bishops want to have it both ways

RE: "MIXED BAG ON THE CATHOLIC CHURCH": The Catholic Church is in no way suing over religious freedom. The churches themselves are not being held to the new health care law, it is Catholic business that is being held to it. If the Catholic Church wants to do business then it must abide by the same rules as everyone else; if it wants to stick with religion, then it can be exempt, but it must abide by religious dogma and give away its services for free as charity. It can't have both.
DOUGLAS BROWN, VIA E-MAIL

Logic compels arguments and comparisons to be on the same issue. The Church's religious belief that birth control is sin is totally unrelated to taxpayer subsidy of religious education. To compare the two is no more valid than to compare Mozart's Requiem to the molecular composition of moon rocks.
GEORGE FORSYTHE, VIA E-MAIL

Fathers need to support their babies

RE: "WHOSE FAULT IS THIS OVERLOAD OF RESPONSIBILITIES?": Two people are involved in the creation of a human being; thus, the responsibility for the care of that child falls upon both parents. The reason there are so many single mothers struggling to survive is those men with whom they have had relations avoid the responsibility of caring for their offspring.
CHER HEARN, VIA E-MAIL

How do women vote for Republicans?!

The Republican party has voted overwhelmingly against the paycheck fairness act and against the Lilly Ledbetter Act that gives women recourse if they are paid less than a man for the same job. Why are there Republican women? How do you say to yourself, "I deserve to earn less when I do the same work because I was born female."

Horoscope

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. You should guard against an inclination to be too possessive or too demanding of your loved ones. This type of behavior usually has a tendency to push others away.

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. Neither you nor your mate should make any major decision without first discussing it with the other. If either of you take action independently, it will only cause problems.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Someone you dislike for no particular reason does not feel the same way about you. Instead of holding fast to this bias, give the person the benefit of the doubt.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. The possibilities for the kind of independent operation you like are very slim, mostly because you're likely to allow others to make demands on your time.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Don't permit a past infraction by another to totally distort your thinking about him or her. Be on guard, but allow this person a second chance — just in case it was one rare moment of indiscretion.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. A friend of yours who has yet to return something that he or she borrowed will put the bite on you for another loan. Before you accede, establish some strict ground rules.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Striving to make your mark in the world is admirable, but not if it's done at the expense of others. Know the difference between climbing and clawing your way up to the top.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Be careful about offering any advice to others, even if asked. If what you say is misunderstood or misinterpreted, you could be blamed for the asking party's failure.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. There is a negative situation that you've had ample opportunity to change but that you haven't done anything about. Unfortunately, this opens the door for another to walk in and alter it to his or her liking.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. If an alliance that you established in the past didn't work out, think twice before getting involved once again. Ask: Was it the team or the objective that was at fault?

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. Just because a co-worker isn't in accord with your way of doing things does not mean you can't succeed. Don't allow a disagreement between you to shut the production down.

Game 6: Tomorrow at Boston 8:30 p.m., ESPN

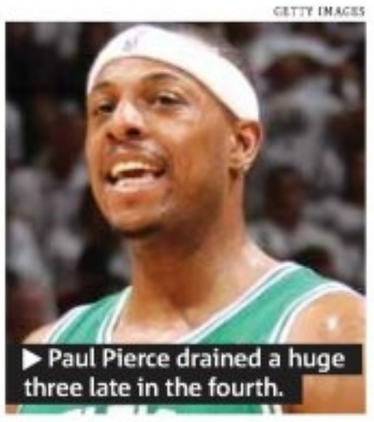
The never say die C's

◗ Garnett's free throws, Pierce's big 3-pointer sinks Miami again in 94-90 stunner ◗ C's lead series 3-2

Three things we learned in the Celtics thrilling 94-90 win in Game 5 last night in Miami:

1 TIME TO CLOSE
Nobody – NOBODY – thought the Celtics would be one game away from going to the NBA Finals, but sure enough, here they are. It took a double-digit comeback, some clutch shots down the stretch, and ice-in-their-veins free throws to seal the deal in the final seconds. Kevin Garnett finished with a team-high 26 points, Paul Pierce 19 points, and Rajon Rondo 13 assists. Mickael Pietrus was the team's most potent sixth man in Game 5, finishing with 13 points including two 3-pointers. The Celtics now have Miami's back against the wall, and hope to punch their ticket to Oklahoma City or San Antonio with a win on Thursday night in Boston. It's been a wild ride so far, but Tuesday's win in Miami might have been the Celtics most impressive win in two years.

GETTY IMAGES



▶ Paul Pierce drained a huge three late in the fourth.

2 THE BOSH EFFECT
Chris Bosh didn't start in Game 5, but he was active and made his presence felt soon after coming off the bench midway through the first quarter. Bosh scored five points in the first, including a nice drive, score, and foul that resulted in a three-point play. Bosh entered the game when it was 13-9 Miami, but by the end of the first quarter Miami had a 24-16 lead. Bosh played just 14:23 minutes in the game, but showed that he's healthy enough to play more in Game 6 and Game 7 (if necessary).

3 BIG SHOTS
After such a bad start for Boston, it would be normal to think the C's would pack it in and hope to win Game 6 to force a Game 7 – but that hasn't been the makeup of this Celtics team. Instead, they roared back. Pietrus makes you want to pull out your hair one second, but then he totally redeems himself by hitting a 3-pointer the next second. Garnett hit two huge jumpers in the second half, and don't forget the dunks. And finally, we would be remiss not to mention Pierce's huge 3-pointer to put the Celtics up by four points with under a minute to go.

Ugly starts

The Celtics and Heat played a brutal offensive first half last night as Miami took a 42-40 lead into intermission.

- Brandon Bass was the Celtics high scorer in the first half, totalling 10 points.
- Miami's Big 3 scored 34 of the Heat's 42 with Chris Bosh posting 9 points in the first.

CHRONIC LOW BACK PAIN?

Learn about an investigational once-a-day pain medication.

Local doctors are currently conducting a clinical trial of an investigational once-a-day pain medication for patients who have been medically diagnosed with moderate to severe chronic low back pain.

To pre-qualify for this trial, patients must:
- Be at least 18 years of age
- Have a diagnosis of moderate to severe chronic low back pain, not due to cancer or injury to nerves, as a primary pain condition for at least three months prior to participating in this trial
- Be currently taking one or more medication(s) for chronic low back pain
- Have chronic low back pain which is currently uncontrolled by their stable pain medication regimen

All trial-related visits, tests, and medications will be provided to participants at no cost. In addition, compensation for time and/or travel may be provided.

Bard sent down, Dice-K in?

Remember back in late April when Daniel Bard was going to be the knight in shining armor as he briefly returned to the Red Sox bullpen?

"Now I still view myself as a starter," Bard said that week. "(Management) said they do too. That's where they said they want me in the long run. For now, they said they're trying to address a need for a couple of days and keep me from going 10 days without throwing. I told them I was OK with it for now."

Well, that confusing stretch should seem like the "good ol' days" for the 26-year-old righty now.

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Will we see the return of Dice-K this weekend?

Bard was assigned to Triple-A Pawtucket on Tuesday and outfielder Darnell McDonald was activated for Boston.

Bard walked six batters in Toronto on Sunday and was extremely wild. He now owns a 5.24 ERA this year in 10 starts.

Daisuke Matsuzaka (remember him?) has looked very good in the minors as of late after having Tommy John surgery a year ago. Matsuzaka allowed just one run on two hits over 5.1 innings last week at Pawtucket.

34 Daniel Bard had 34 holds last year for the Red Sox. Bard finished the 2009-11 seasons with an ERA of 3.65 or lower. This year Bard has a 5.24 ERA.

There is a possibility that Dice-K, who is expected to throw three innings Tuesday night for Pawtucket, could take Bard's place this Saturday at Fenway Park against the Washington Nationals.

The Rondo trade rumors don't die

ESPN writer says a Rondo-Westbrook trade could still be a possibility Thunder-Celtics in NBA Finals?

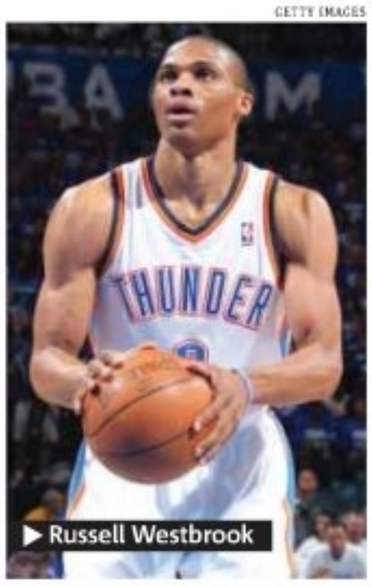
A Thunder-Celtics NBA Finals matchup would offer plenty of intrigue.

There's the obvious Kendrick Perkins angle. Then there's the fact that Kevin Durant could easily have become a Celtic if the lottery had had a different outcome back in 2007.

Prior to Tuesday's Game 5 in Miami, ESPN writer and analyst Chris Broussard refloated the idea of a Rajon Rondo for Russell Westbrook trade this upcoming summer.

Broussard tweeted last November that Celtics boss Danny Ainge proposed a bizarre

GETTY IMAGES



▶ Russell Westbrook

Rondo and Jeff Green for Russell Westbrook and Kendrick Perkins trade to Oklahoma City prior to the start of the season.

Both Rondo and Westbrook are having fabulous postseasons for their respective squads. Westbrook is a notably better scorer than Rondo, as he averaged 23.6 points per game this season. Still, Rondo's 44 point game in Game 2 of the Miami series seemed to have put an infinite end to trade rumors ... that is until last night.

An amazing loft space up for rent should fit like a comfortable old shoe

A former footwear factory, it is the opposite of what you usually think of with the Back Bay

HELL BENT FOR THE LEATHER DISTRICT

The Leather District is the antithesis of Brahmin Back Bay living. It comprises the renovated remnants of Boston's once-fruitful manufacturing past, namely leatherworking and shoemaking in this part. After the area's post-Great Depression decline, the L.D. slowly became a place of cheap rents, often in illegal apartments, and bohemia became its lifeblood.

"Many of the buildings have been restored and renovated over the past 15 years," says Chad James Lingle of Artisan Properties, the company handling the rental of two apartments on Beach Street. "This has brought a strong residential component to the area, with luxurious loft-style condominiums now hiding behind the 1880s facades."

One of Lingle's vacant apartments is a one-bedroom that was renovated in 2004. Lovely maple floors and magnificent industrial-era windows work with open-plan, movable sliding partitions to create smaller private spaces. Lingle doesn't expect it to stay vacant long.

"There's lots of demand and very little supply," he says. "What was once just storage spaces, relatively cheap office units and quasi-permissible loft apartments has transformed itself into a true urban village."

Nightlife has boomed courtesy of District and Splash. Dining includes French stalwart Les Zygomates, nationally lauded sushi haven O-ya and Italian eatery Sorriso. Plus, Chinatown is right down the street.

"Things are much quieter over the weekends, and on Sunday the L.D. rests," says Lingle. "Everyone closes their doors and the denizens of the neighborhood shut down for a day of pause and puritanical reflection. After all ... this is Boston."

WHAT'S OFTEN OVERLOOKED IN A HOME INSPECTION

By Attorney George Warshaw

A home inspection is a "must" for a person buying a home or a condo, even if (and sometimes especially if) the home or condo is brand new.

Too often home buyers bemoan after the purchase that the broker advised them that an inspection wasn't needed because the home or condo was brand new. Just because a new home or newly renovated home or condo is new doesn't mean the work was done right, or the appliances, plumbing or electricals were properly connected and functioning.

I love reviewing an inspection report that uses digital photographs with big red circles to pinpoint problems requiring repair. So much of time wasted in a purchase is spent trying to describe what needs to be done or arguing over whether the condition is a problem.

A photograph with a nice red circle indicating the problem often ends the discussion and simplifies getting a quote from a repair person.

Here's my suggestion in interviewing an inspector: ask if the report will contain digital photographs of the problems encountered; or better yet, ask if you can review an existing report online to get a sense of the quality of the inspector's work.

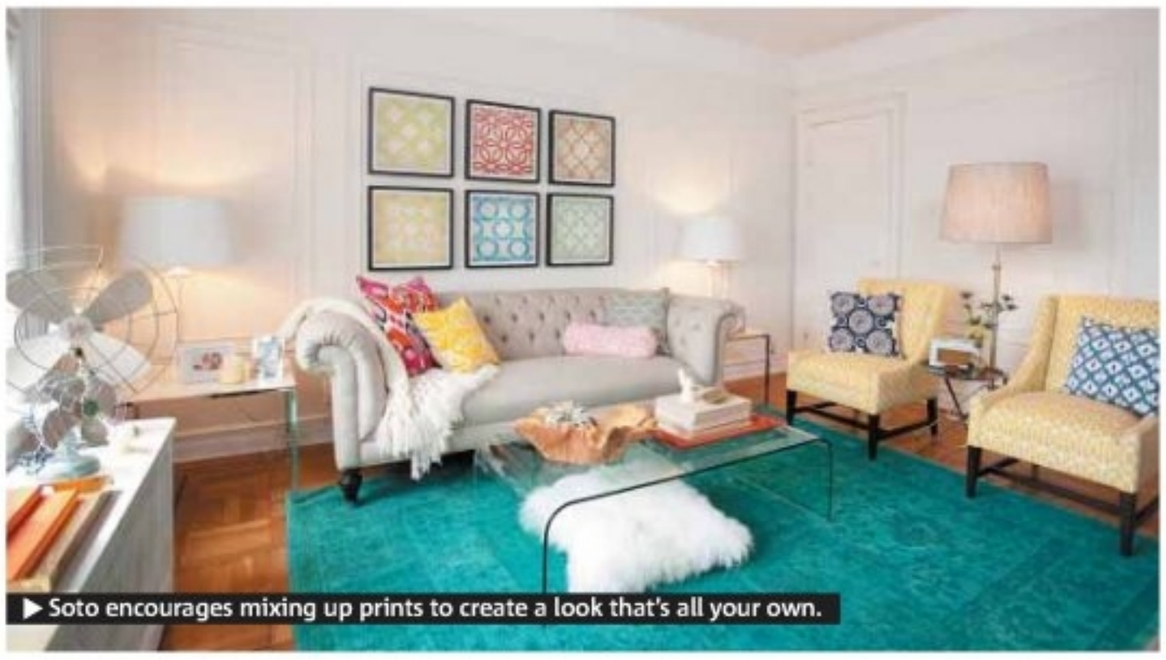
It's all in the details: Sabrina Soto teaches us the little things that make or break home decor



▶ Soto encourages mixing up prints to create a look that's all your own.

Even if your design aesthetic currently means your college futon coexists with your great aunt's coffee table, there are ways to pull a room together stylishly. Just ask HGTV star Sabrina Soto, whose new book, "Home Design," gives the low-down on layering to get a room's flavor just right. Here, she walks through the finishing touches that give any space extra pizzazz.

The right accent pieces

"I think accessorizing can take a room from being OK to absolutely fabulous," Soto says. "It's about making the right decisions when accessorizing. You want pops of color, you want different textures, you want interesting pieces that tell your story, but you don't want to overdo it." Her two rules for polishing a room like a pro? "I always like to accessorize in odd numbers, and I never like to use things smaller than a grapefruit. I think too many little knickknacks become clutter."

Steal this trick

To work around a clunky radiator: "Put a floating shelf on top of it and use it as a table. You could get a floating shelf at Ikea or Target for nothing. And I usually like to have it blend in with the wall, so I'll paint it the exact same color, but you just want to make sure to use high-heat paint."

The right lighting

Soto says it's the most important aspect of design — and sorry: Overhead bulbs aren't gonna cut it. She suggests "two, maybe even three, artificial forms of light per room," even in small rooms. "Lighting really does make or break a room, whether it's a sconce, chandelier, recess lighting, even table lamps. You want to have enough light in a room to balance a space."

MEREDITH ENGEL
meredith.engel@metro.us

▶ Soto recommends two or three light sources in each room of your home.

Legend: The rate and annual percentage rate (APR) are effective as of 6/11/12. © 2012 Bankrate, Inc. http://www.adnet.com). The APR may increase after consummation and may vary. Fees may not include amounts for taxes and insurance. The fees set forth for each advertisement shown may be charged to open the plan. (A) Mortgage Banker. (B) Mortgage Broker. (C) Bank. (D) S & L. (E) Credit Union. (BA) indicates Licensed Mortgage Banker, NYS Banking Dept., (BR) indicates Registered Mortgage Broker, NYS Banking Dept., (loans arranged through third parties). "Call for Rates" means actual rates were not available at press time. All rates are quoted on a minimum FICO score of 740. Conventional loans are based on loan amounts of $417,000. Jumbo loans are based on loan amounts of $417,000. Points quoted include discount and/or origination. Lock Days: 30 to 60. Annual percentage rates (APRs) are based on fully indexed rates for adjustable rate mortgages (ARMs). The APR on your specific loan may differ from the sample used. Fees reflect charges relative to the APR. If your down payment is less than 20% of the home's value, you will be subject to private mortgage insurance, or PMI. The right fabrics

This covers everything from your window treatments to your couch's upholstery to the pillows on top of it. Find a balance, Soto suggests, and feel free to ditch the matchy-matchy look. "It's about mixing up prints but making sure that at the end of the day they still tell a nice story," she says. And yes, you can mix prints! "There's no specific rules, but you just want to make sure that the colors play well with each other. If you have two prints next to each other, you still want them still to have the same shades of colors. It's like clothes."
